On 12 Aug 2019, AiSP Intern Eindra Kho and 4 students from Singapore Polytechnic (SP) were at St Vincent Home, to teach 20 elderly participants on using tablet to watch shows and read news online, and how to stay protected on the Internet. This is part of AiSP's Student Volunteer Recognition Programme where students contribute and serve the community beyond their curriculum.

Eindra said that “I was given the opportunity to plan a small event to teach elderly how to stay abreast with the Internet. This experience has helped me step out of my comfort and try something new that I have never done. During the event, I got to interact with the elderly and engage them in some meaningful activities.”

AiSP would like to thank SP students for volunteering in the event during their exam break and St Vincent for providing AiSP an opportunity to give back to the community.
